Welcome to the time where memories are made and hearts get broken. Raven Quinn has always been a force on the basketball court, but in life, not so much. Having a dating life isn't easy when she's taller and stronger than every guy she knows, or he's already put her in the friend zone. Which hasn't really been a problem until now. Now she's feels left out and left behind. What if she's in the friend zone for the rest of her life? Shane Gibson makes her think different and takes her out of that dreaded friend zone, but in the wrong direction. Grant Hudson has been Raven's best friend since they were in diapers. She's the best friend a guy could have, he's always felt that way. So why does this guy she's dating bother him so much? Why is he suddenly very aware of her body and the way his reacts to her? Why, for the love of everything, can't he get her off his mind? When things go south with Shane and Raven is broken, will Grant step up and take the shot, getting past the guard Raven has around her heart?
