What really gets to us is the embarrassment that we go through every time people react so tactlessly to our skin condition. Psoriasis leaves very unsightly scars and marks on the affected areas. The red patches of raised red skin with thick silvery scales are what people see when skin is exposed. What they say or do when they see the marks may cause a blow to our self-esteem and it is the worry and fear of this that a sufferer endures each and every day of his life. Not every prescription drug will work to treat psoriasis. That is a known fact among millions of sufferers.
