Cassie survived a nightmare of a marriage only to find herself pregnant and alone, struggling to piece together her life. The mental scars that Richard left her with are worse than the physical scars that he left on her body. Haunted by the overwhelming feelings of fear and loneliness, Cassie finds that her mental health is at stake. With her life constantly changing, will she be able to finally let go of her past and find what she needs to survive being on her own? Trévon put his life on hold to be by Cassie's side like he's done so many times before, but watching her slowly break down mentally, is taking a toll on him. Although leaving Cassie is difficult for him to do, staying is worse. Trying to respect her wishes to just be friends, knowing that it's impossible for him to do so, he finds himself at a crossroads. Does he keep helping Cassie raise her child and live a lie or does he walk away forever? Embark on this journey as Trévon and Cassie struggle through mental health issues, parenthood, and sorting out their feelings for each other. Cassie begins to see Trévon in a new light but is it too late? Unsure of her feelings Cassie might possibly ruin the friendship that they have. Is Trévon the key to Cassie's happiness or does she find happiness in the love of someone else? Does love really conquer all, or does love simply just fade away?
